

Visit
www.conservationhunting.com

Help Spread the True Merits of Conservation Hunting to the Public and Legislators!

TELL THE TRUE STORY

An educational website has been produced by deer, elk, and exotic associations and industry supporters to tell the accurate story of conservation hunting in a concise manner.

Tell the story of quick basic facts to dispel the negative myths that are intended to end hunting.

A five minute video has been produced on DVD that can be distributed around your Statehouse and the interested public.

The video is also online at www.conservationhunting.com

A few of the quick facts of our story...

The Basics

Conservation hunting ranches are small businesses that give outdoorsmen the opportunity to hunt wildlife on private land. Ranchers work hard to breed all kinds of wildlife and to maintain a habitat for them.

Conservation hunting has helped grow the populations of species that are nearly extinct in the wild by up to 2,500 percent. Conservation hunting ranches also help to manage the population of native species such as deer and elk.

The massive amounts of acreage on a conservation hunting ranch are enclosed with fencing in order to protect the animals and land.

There are over 12,000 businesses across America involved in conservation hunting. Conservation hunting is a multi-billion dollar industry that supports scores of species and provides tens of thousands of jobs for Americans. Most ranch operations are small businesses and many are multi-generational family farm operations.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Conservation hunting ranches are successful small businesses focused on breeding and hunting wildlife.
- Animal populations that are extinct or endangered in the wild have been saved by conservation hunting ranches.
- Conservation hunting ranches are an integral part of the American economy.